Trendsetter with Computer

I call myself being positive and aggressive at all times. With the sign of the computer age coming, I bought one, Widows 95, a little after the word processor came into my office. I installed the Oasis word processor soft in it so that I could replace to the computer at any time when the time comes.

However, the computer was idle for about a half year with dust on it, while the word processor was in full swing. It happened that the word processor went wrong for something.

My writing work was immediately shifted to the computer. If it were not for the prior investment for it, the word processor would have been fixed so that my computer activities would have been delayed much. This is real what we call “prior investment”, which I could tell its importance with this good example later year.

It was at that time, I remember, that I began to send my manuscript to the newspaper editor room in the form of floppy. Among the many writers, I was the first and the only writer who send the manuscript by floppy. I was the top runner.
